Lab 1.1 Processing Order, Inheritance, and Cascading

The focus of this lab is to use Atom and its localhost/live preview features to answer questions regarding CSS Basic Processing Order, Inheritance, and Cascading. You will use the Developer Tools in the browser to answer the questions for the lab.
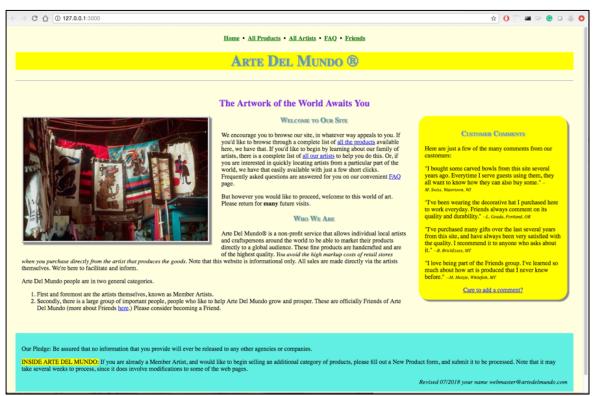

This is a learning lab, so you will be presented with 12 questions to respond to. You will need to open in the live server the provided files in order to answer the questions. Some questions will have you making modifications within the Developer Tools. Other questions will have you utilizing the styles tab to determine current or modified applied CSS. As a learning lab, you will have the opportunity after submitting your responses to learn from any incorrect responses. You may then perform the lab again (or as many times as you wish to practice). Your highest score for the lab will count as your score for the lab.
